BLACK VARIANT

BLACK VARIANT

The Black Variant fly pattern is a type of fly used in fly fishing. It is a classic wet fly pattern that originated in the northeastern United States and has been used for decades to catch trout and other game fish.

The Black-Variant is a simple fly that typically consists of a black body made of floss or other materials and black hackle fibers.

SPARKLE DUN

SPARKLE DUN

A Sparkle Dun fly is a type of dry fly used in fly fishing, commonly used to imitate mayflies or other small insects that sit on top of the water's surface.

The fly is typically tied with a body made of natural or synthetic dubbing materials, with a tail made of hackle fibers, and wings made of bleached or natural deer hair.
